running down a wild boar, intending to lance it, when the animal turned, bit the mule's leg and then fled again. The mule screamed savagely, and in a minute she had deposited the officer on the ground. Then, kicking out vigorously five or six times, as if to see that her legs were all right, she started after the unfortu .e pig at lightning speed, with fury in her eyes and vengeance in the crook of her The race was not long, and the wild boar soon realized that he had exasperated a relentless enemy. He was soon winded, and the mule, coming up with him, caught him by the backbone with her teeth, crunched it and threw him to the ground and then, before he could rise, kicked him so victously that he was a dead boar in less than no time. Then the mule returned to her master and gave utter ance to a "heehaw" of triumph.

Many persons, says a well known doctor, though not actually sick, keep par in strength and general tone, and he is of the opinion that fasting during the long interval between supper and breakfast, and especially the complete emptiness of the stomach during sleep, adds greatly to the amount of emaciation, aleepless ness and general weakness we so often meet. It is logical to believe that the supply of nourishment should be somewhat continuous, especially in those who are below par, if we would counteract their emaciation and lower de gree of vitality, and as bodily exer-cise is suspended during sleep, with wear and tear correspondingly diminished, while digestion, assimilation and nutritive activity continue as usual, the food furnished during this period adds more than is destroyed, and increased weight and improved general

Straight From the Animal. A London gentleman, having taken a small farm in the country as being the correct thing to do, as well as to get a little fresh air, had invited some of his friends down to see his new Having viewed the domain and not ing the absence of creature life about the place, one of his friends remarked: "With a nice, open place like this, I wonder you don't have some animals about, as is usual on a farm. Some cows, for instance, so as to have your own butter and cream." "No-o," drawled his host, "don't care about butter or cream.' "Some chickens or ducks, then. You surely like fresh eggs?"

"No-o, don't care for eggs. But I've sometimes thought I'd like a sheep. I rather like kidneys for breakfast."-Liverpool Mercury.

To see New York city from the Pall-sades is to witness the multiple beauty and wonder of the Palisades themselves. One of the most astonishing facts concerning these towering masses of grandeur is that they lie so close to the most artificial, man subjugated area that civilization has evolved, writes Philip Verrill Migheis in Harper's Magazine. To come upon the Palisades from the rear at night the Falisades from the rear at hight is like stepping to the edge of the world, where the slender, dark island lies low beyond as if it were only a part of space, its countless lights looking like millions of stars stretched for miles across the sky. The illu sion is dispelled when the wind flows up with the tide to the base of the cliffs and lifts up the full throated roar of the substantial city.

Approaching It Gradually. An old farmer, on paying his rent, told his landlord he wanted some timber to build a house and would be much obliged to him if he would give permission to cut down wood for the The landlord answered peremptorily,

"Why, then, sir," said he, "will you give me enough to build a barn?"

"To make a gate, then?"

"That's all I wanted," said the farmer, "and more than I expected."-Pear son's Weekly.
